Job Details

Description

Summary:

Are you passionate about shaping the future of veterinary medicine while working in a collaborative, growth-minded environment? Midwestern University's College of Veterinary Medicine is looking for a clinical or tenure-track faculty member to join our expanding Small Animal Emergency Service.

This is more than just a job! It is an opportunity to make an impact. You will help train the next generation of veterinarians, influence an evolving curriculum, and play a key role in building an extraordinary critical care program focused on compassionate, evidence-based medicine.

This is a full-time, clinical position that will provide coverage for daytime and after hour emergencies through a rotational schedule. The successful candidate will join other faculty members who provide emergency services in the Companion Animal Clinic (CAC). The Emergency Services team will consist of four full-time clinicians sharing a flexible schedule.

The CAC is an AAHA-accredited veterinary clinic featuring state-of-the-art medical, surgical, dental, and intensive care facilities, where a team of veterinarians provides expertise across a broad range of specialties. While independent research is not a requirement for this position, a certain degree of scholarly activity is expected of all faculty members. Evidence of interest and experience in research will be considered an asset.

At Midwestern, you will find a supportive culture that values, innovation in teaching, and team-based patient care. Our new facilities, collaborative colleagues, and enthusiastic students create a dynamic environment where your ideas can come to life.

If you thrive on teamwork, mentorship, and making a real difference we would love to have you on our team.

Come grow with us and help shape the future of veterinary emergency medicine.

The following qualifications are required:

- DVM or equivalent degree
- Candidates must be eligible for Arizona veterinary licensure. A faculty license pathway is available for applicants who do not hold a U.S. veterinary degree
- Minimum 5 years of experience in small animal emergency or critical care
- Excellence in clinical communication
- Commitment to quality, compassionate, patient-centered care, and broad skills in standard emergency practice-level medical and surgical care of dogs and cats
- Collaborative mindset to foster a team-approach to case management
- Dedication to the education of students through student-driven, interactive learning

The following qualifications are preferred:

- Board certification or eligibility in Emergency and Critical Care (ACVECC or ECVECC)

If you would like to learn more about this position, please submit your application through Midwestern University's online job board at <https://www.midwestern.edu/employment-mwu>. Your online application should include a letter of intent and a curriculum vitae with the names and contact information (including email addresses) of at least three professional references. Please note that although faculty positions are usually listed as "Assistant Professor", initial appointment at a higher rank is possible based on the academic experience of the applicant.
